Chillva Night Market

Tonight we are going to embrace one of Thailand's popular night market.

Whillva Market Phuket is a cool, trendy night market with a somewhat bohemian vibe and an impressive selection of food, fashion and other stalls.

Chillva Market Phuket is rather more geared towards local Thais than it is for tourists. It gives you a much more local experience than some of Phuket's other markets and the prices are generally more reasonable.

Phuket FantaSea Show

in the evening we head to Phuket Fantasea; it is the island's biggest show. With trapeze artists, a cast of hundreds, performing elephants and other animals and an exotic story line that blends tradition with fantasy you'll have a wonderful evening out here.

But the extravaganza doesn't stop there as FantaSea also hosts one of the biggest buffets in Asia and is set in a theme park that offers carnival-like games, lots of shopping opportunities, a Palace of the Elephants, a Similan Adventure Centre and several other food outlets. It's spectacular, it's extravagant, it's impressive and great entertainment value for all.

When we get back to the hotel I suggest getting a good night sleep as tomorrow our day starts very early in the morning.

Old Phuket Town

This evening's tour will begin at 15:00. Take a closer look at Phuket's rich cultural heritage with a unique evening tour.

Continue past Sino-Portuguese buildings which attest to the island's past as a key stop on the Asian trading routes. There is also a chance to visit a colorful fruit market where locally-grown tropical fruits are sold.

Following this insightful walking tour, return to the car and drive to the summit of Rang Hill. Enjoy sweeping views of the town, seeing the heritage buildings from a different point of view. A refreshing cocktail and light snack will be served at this scenic location.
